Dana Stobbe Biography

Dana (Wiginton) Stobbe is the English Language Arts Content Specialist for grades 6 through 12. Edmond Public Schools is committed to involving all students in language arts curriculum that will prepare them to meet the challenges they will face in college or in their careers. English courses are designed to engage students with increasingly complex informational and literary texts, to foster critical thinking skills, and to cultivate the ability to communicate effectively with others. Students learn communication through discussing ideas, writing in various modes, and creating multimodal products. Research standards are integrated throughout each course.

Stobbe has been an educator for more than 28 years. She earned her bachelor’s degree in English Education at Southwestern Oklahoma State University and her master’s degree in Educational Administration at Tarleton State University-Central Texas.

Beginning her teaching career in southwest Oklahoma, Stobbe taught high school and eighth grade in two rural districts near her hometown, Altus. From 1991 until 1999, she taught high school English classes and coached speech and debate teams in Killeen, Texas. While attending graduate school, Stobbe was the coordinator for the gifted program and for the leadership academy at Ellison High School, and, upon completion of her principal’s certification, she became the curriculum administrator for a middle school for eight years. She was involved in campus, district, and state-level professional development; served on vertical alignment teams; and frequently helped with writing curriculum for English and speech classes.

In 2012, when Stobbe accepted the job as a content specialist for Edmond Public Schools, she returned to the town where she once attended first through fourth grades at Northern Hills Elementary.

She enjoys creative writing, reading, and spending time with her husband, Craig, and their extended family.
